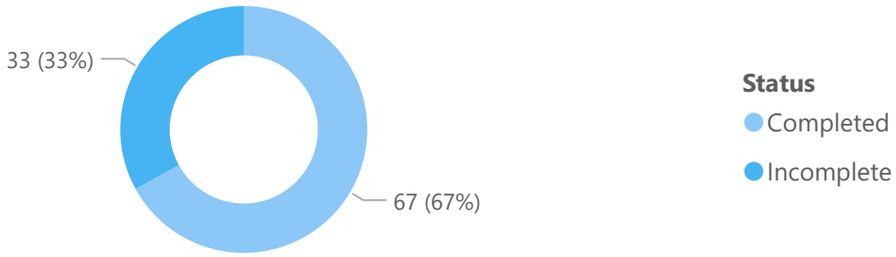
Objective: Improve training completion identify performance and compliance risks across departments

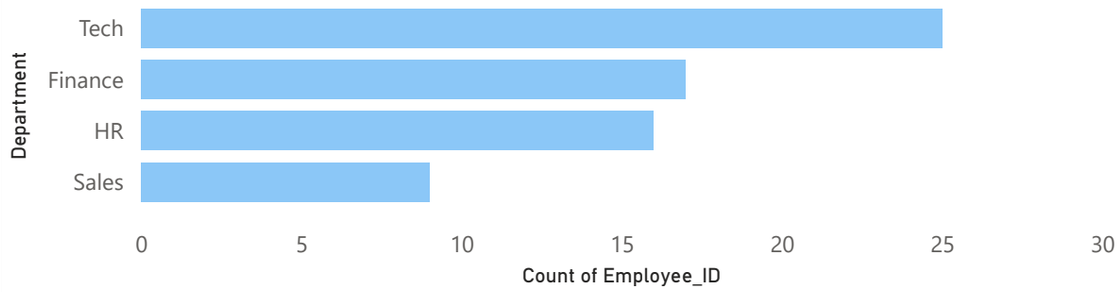
100	67%	85%	-18%
Count of Employee_ID	Completion Rate	Completion Target	Completion Gap

Training Completion Trend

Completion Status Distribution



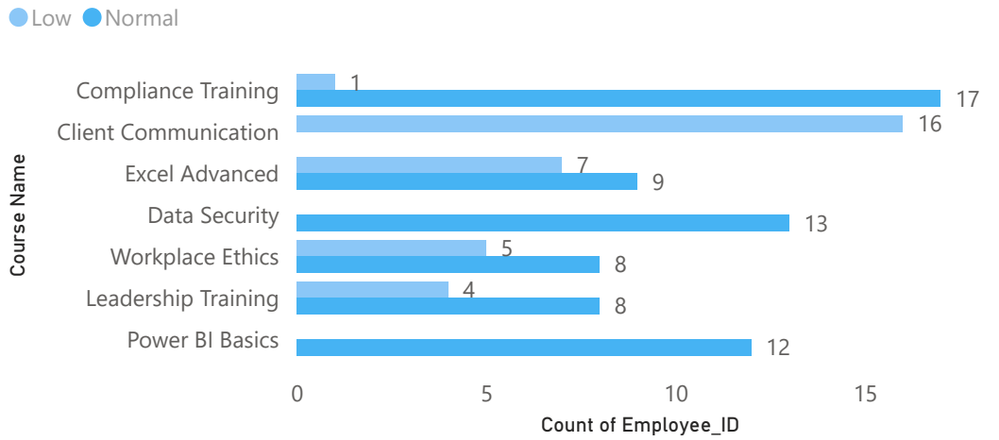
Completion by Department



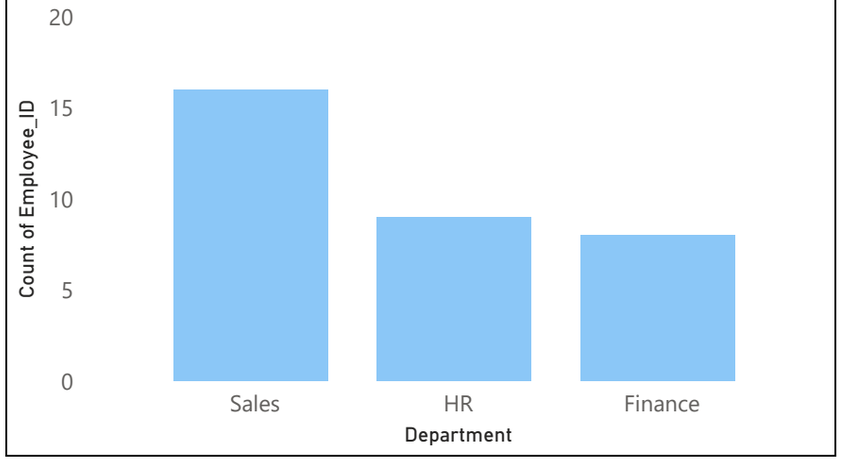
Key Highlights:
- Overall completion rate is below target (85%)
- Sales department shows lower completion rates, likely due to operational workload. Targeted follow-ups and tracking mechanisms may improve compliance.
- Training completion trend shows moderate consistency till March. After that it sharply fells in April.

Objective: Identify training compliance risks and prioritize actions to improve completion and performance

Courses Driving Low Performance



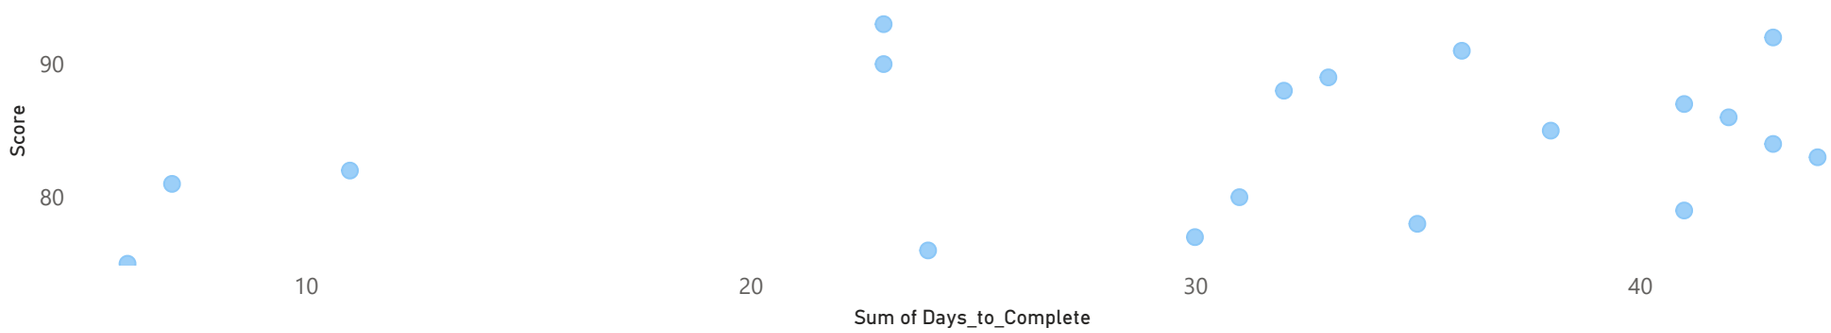
Department wise Low Performers



33

Low Performer Count Out of 100 Employees

Behavior Analysis



Top-left: High score, fast completion (best performers)
Bottom-right: Low score, slow completion (critical concern)

Key Findings:
- Certain courses contribute significantly to low performance
- Sales department shows higher concentration of low scores
- Employees taking longer time do not always perform better

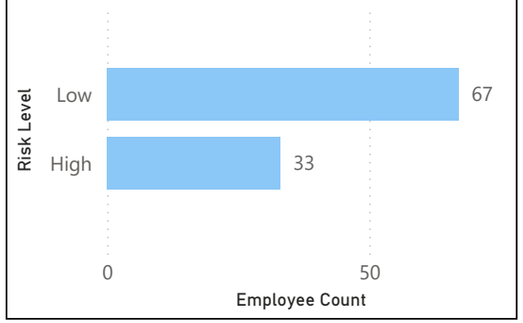
Objective: Identify training compliance risks and prioritize actions to improve completion and performance

33
High Risk Count

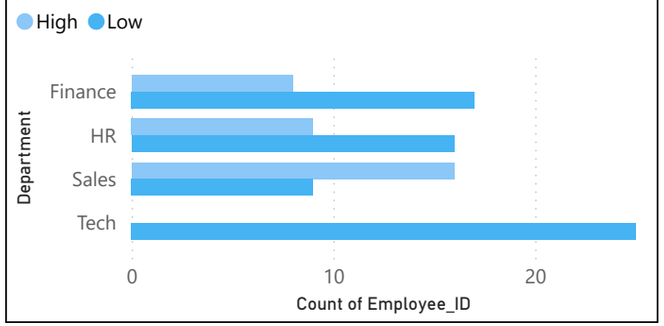
67%
Completion Rate

9
Average Days

Risk Distribution



Risk by Department



Action Table

Employee_ID	Department	Course_Name	Month	Day	Risk_Levels
E078	Sales	Client Communication	March	20	High
E080	Finance	Excel Advanced	March	22	High
E083	HR	Workplace Ethics	March	25	High
E086	Sales	Client Communication	March	28	High
E090	Sales	Client Communication	April	1	High
E092	Finance	Excel Advanced	April	3	High
E095	HR	Leadership Training	April	6	High
E098	Sales	Client Communication	April	9	High

Key Findings:
- High-risk employees 33% are concentrated in Sales and HR departments .
- Incomplete trainings are the primary driver of risk.
- Immediate intervention required for high-risk cases.

Recommended Action:
Prioritize high-risk employees and enforce completion deadlines through department-level tracking.